The Times Buildings.—The best place in the United Buildings.—The best place in the United Busies to construct a fine building was the spot in front of the Fark where the building now stands of The New-York Times. It is surrounded by streets on all sides; it makes a small block by itself, it fronts on the City Hall Park, and is flooded with light from all quarters from the rising to the setting san. The best place in this central spot of taste, business and splendor, was taken for a RESTAURANT by CROOK & DUFF, and since they opened it last Spring it has been crowded. They give the earliests breakfasts and the latest dinners that are to be hadddown town, and at prices which smazed us when we looked at their Bill of Fare. The entrances are from Park-row and Rassan-st., up stairs for the Restaurant, and down stairs for the Lunch-Room, a.c. The whole establishment is maintained with the utmost degree of elegance and convenience for the guests; and with a system of economy and rapidity of execution of orders which surpasses the expectation of every guest.—[From Daily Times.

human heart, while a vein of quiet humor is developed by som of the characters who figure in the progress of the story, that will provoke a laugh from the most sedate reader, in spite of himself. "AZAEL KAIN" is a great picture of life, which brings before the mind of the reader the storms and sunshine of human existence, as portrayed—and felt—and participated in by living, breathing human beings. The reader at once recog-nizes its truthfulness by the infallible test which his own heart furnishes. The Incidents and the Adventures of the characters who figure in the pages of "AZAEL KAIN" are alternately of the most exciting and amusing character.

We have also in preparation a new Revolutionary story from DR. J. H. ROBINSON, than 120,000 volumes of this work were sold the first

More than 120,000 volumes of this work were sold the first year of its publication.

The Hon. Edward Evrert says:

"It does the author equal credit as a man of science, and an energetic, skillful and courageous adventurer, and a true-hearted philanthropist. In conjunction with his former publications, it will secure him an abiding place on the rolls of honest fame among the heroes of humanity. The style of typography and illustration is of superior excellence."

W. H. Prescott, the Historian, says:
"It is one of the most remarkable records I have ever met with, of difficulties and sufferings, and of the power of a brave split to overcome them."

WM. C. BRYANT, the Poet, says:
"The merits of Dr. Kane's recent work are so universally acknowledged, that it seems superfluous to praise it."

The Rev. Francis L. Hawks, LL.D. says:
"The world has in it few such stories of human suffering and heroic endurance as is presented in Dr. Kane's is knork. The book is one which needs not the word of approbation from an man, it carries with it has own recommendation; and I should feel that in me it would be but an act of impertinence should pretend to indorse its meits. Dr. Kase and his book will, very properly, be remembered long siter I am forgotten."

G. P. R. James, the Novelist, says:
"I read the two volumes with deeper interest than I ever felt in any work in my life, and I concluded them with love and admiration for the man who wrote them. I only wish there were

Major Gen Winfield Scott says:

"I have read Dr. Kane's Arctic Explorations (only since his death) with the most poignant interest. So many noble adventures in the came of humanity—so many breathless escapes from imminent destruction—so much achieved for science—and all told in spirited yet classical English—which the young hero and scholar, though in haste, had hardly committed to the immortal press when he sank into the grave, the victim of his own undying labors!"

A new edition of this work has been published, with an INTRODUCTION TO WRITTEN ARITHMETIC added, but the criginal text has not been changed. Teachers and others will be pleased to learn that the publishers have brought out a new treatise on Written Arithmetic, designed to follow Celborn's First Leasons, based on the same general plan, Adapted to the best mode of instruction in Common Schools and Academies.

BY JAMES S. EATON.

The cordial reception which this book has received, its general introduction, and the decided satisfaction it gives in the school-room, piace it in a prominent position as a text-book. Although recently presented for poblic favor, it is used in many of the best schools in the country, and meets the approbation of the most critical mathematical teachers. The well-known ability of the author and his long experience in teaching eminently fit him to prepare a text-book of Written Arithmetic.

We have thoroughly tested Mr. EATON'S ARITHMETIC in our Seminary, and individually the most estimatory than has failen under our notice for practical use. It is scientific, perspections, methodical and practical—neither too concise, nor yet too full. Divested of all useless verbiage, the principles and rules are clearly stated and systematically illustrated and applied.
